

British vs. Foreign Born

The subject of immigration to Canada is, it is gratifying to note, engaging the attention of the people of the Dominion to an ever increasing extent. A very real interest is being aroused, and this interest is not confined to Canada, but is much in evidence in the British Isles. This growing interest is occasioned, not only because of a realization of the fact that one of Canada's national requirements is a larger population, but because it is becoming increasingly clear that in the present and succeeding years, Canada will be the mecca of the surplus population of older and more congested lands.

Much of the discussion around this subject is as to the effect of this larger influx of population upon the future character, ideals and national view point of the Canadian people. Fears are expressed in some quarters that non-English speaking peoples will swamp the native Canadians and the British-born, with a resultant gradual weakening of the ties binding Canada to the Empire, and the possible introduction of customs and ideals not wholly acceptable to those of British descent. It has been argued that Canada should restrict immigration to men and women of British descent.

While it will be generally admitted that greater encouragement should be given to British immigration than to immigration of other races, it is a pity and a grave mistake that people strongly urging this view should indulge in mis-statements in their references to the present composition of Canada's population, and more particularly the racial classifications of the people of the Western prairie provinces.

Speaking before the Canadian Club of Vancouver recently, Mayor Webb of Winnipeg is credited with making the statement that fifty per cent, of the people of the prairie provinces were non-British. It would be interesting to have Mr. Webb submit some proof in support of such a statement, because the official census figures do not support him.

At a meeting of the Women's British Emigration League held in Saskatoon a few weeks ago, the even more astounding statement was made that "after a careful study of statistics" it was established that Saskatchewan's population was 75 per cent, foreign born and only 25 per cent, British, and a Saskatoon paper headed its report of this League meeting with a two-column display declaring "Province's Population Is 75 per cent, of Foreign Extraction."

In view of the circulation of such misinformation from what might well be accepted as authoritative sources, it is well that the actual facts should be given wide publicity.

According to the census of 1921, the population of the three prairie provinces was 1,966,682, and was officially classified as follows:

	Born in Canada	Born in other British Possessions	Born in U.S.A.	Born else- where
Manitoba	387,716	113,111	21,614	87,614
Saskatchewan	457,833	100,355	87,617	111,765
Alberta	315,090	99,392	99,875	74,993
Total	1,160,639	312,861	209,146	243,112

In other words, out of a total population of 1,956,082, no less than 1,473,500 were British-born, either in Canada or in Great Britain and other British countries. That is, a little better than 75 per cent, were British-born as compared with less than 25 per cent, non-British, a contrast to Mayor Webb's figures of 55 per cent, non-British and only 45 per cent, British.

The figures used at Saskatoon relative to Saskatchewan should just be re-erased—75 per cent, born under the British flag and only 25 per cent, under all other flags being the correct classification.

It is a well known fact that thousands of our people classified as born in the United States are the children of Canadians who emigrated to the western middle states in the eighties, while other thousands are of British descent.

Canada is British and British to stay. The Anglo-Saxon has demonstrated his ability to assimilate other people as no other race has done, and here in the West we know that most of our non-British people have a high regard for democratic British institutions, a real appreciation of British liberty, and deep respect for British law. They are glad to have their children educated in regard to these things, and in a generation or two it is well nigh impossible to distinguish them from those of British descent, except for the surnames they bear.

British people themselves are the result of an intermingling of races, and in the melting pot of Canada there is every reason to believe that the Canadian people of the future will be one of the finest, sturdiest, most moral and intelligent races in the world. Certainly it is that in education, in energy and progressiveness, in achievements already to their credit, and in the development of their governmental institutions, the people of Canada's prairie provinces do not take second place to any other section of the Dominion or country in the world.

We need entertain no fears for the future, and it is not only a mistake but most unfair to Canada for presumably informed people and organizations to broadcast untrue and therefore misleading statements regarding our people.

Prince of Wales' Canadian Visit to Cover Only Six Weeks

Instead of spending six weeks at his ranch in Alberta, the Prince of Wales is not likely to be away from England for more than six weeks altogether on his Canadian visit this summer. Although the detailed arrangements for his visit have not yet been completed the Canadian Press learns that the suggested six weeks will very likely represent the whole period of the Prince's absence from England. The Prince leaves for Canada early in August.

Strange Performance Staged in Moscow

Remarkable Parade Was Grim Reminder of Czarist Days

Moscow witnessed one of the strangest theatrical performances in history recently. Dressed in striped prison garb and shackled with chains and handcuffs and with shaved heads, 300 actors paraded the streets of the capital guarded by Cossack prison wardens carrying knouts and swords. The purpose of this grim procession was to show the present proletarian public how political offenders were punished in Czarist days and signified the tenth anniversary of liberation from imperial jails of professional revolutionists.

Each "convict" wore on his back a large acre of diamonds which in pre-revolutionary days was accepted as a symbol of degradation and opprobrium. The entire company proceeded to the Meyerhold theatre where they gave a drama based on prison life under the emperors.

A Good Word For Canada

Is Land of Opportunity for Women as Well as Men, Says Lady Byng

"We all realize that men are the most helpless creatures in the world," said Lady Byng, until recently Mistress of Rideau Hall, Ottawa, in an address to a London club on the woman's side of a settler's life in Canada.

"They are never old enough to take care of themselves," she said, "and if they like this in England they are worse in Canada. Therefore, if a man goes to settle there and takes with him a woman who is not going to pull with him, he will fail."

"Canada is the land of opportunity for women as much as for men. It is the woman who is prepared to put her back into it and not care an atom what she does, who will make good and become a successful and prosperous settler."

Lady Byng described schemes of migration as very good so far as they went, but "red tape" was terrible and had stopped a great many people from going to Canada.

She dwelt upon the hospitality and friendliness of Canadians to people from the home country.

A Nova Scotia Lady Tells How She Found Relief

Among the well-known residents of Sydney, N.S., is Mrs. William Silver, who tells for the benefit of other sufferers how she found relief from a severe attack of rheumatism. Mrs. Silver says:—"In the early fall of 1926, I contracted a cold which developed into a severe attack of muscular rheumatism. In fact, it almost totally disabled me, and I suffered great agony most of the time. After trying in vain to get something to relieve me, I decided to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which I had heard highly recommended. I may say that the quick relief they afforded really surprised me, and after taking some six boxes of the pills every twelfth of the rheumatism had gone, and I am now feeling better than I have been for some years past. The pills not only banished the rheumatism, but helped me in many other ways."

Will Not Tolerate Color Which Is Associated With Bolshevism

Anything associated with the color red is difficult to sell in Finland. An American automobile manufacturer, consigned a large number of automobiles to Finland, and while most of the cars sold readily, 40 of them were unsaleable owing to the various shades of red that had been used in painting the cars. They had to be repainted to invite Finnish buyers. In two countries are Bolsheviks and Bolsheviks so disliked as in Finland, hence the Finns' dislike of the color of red.

Living Under the Terror of a New Despotism

The peasants of Russia are living in the same darkness and under a new terror and despotism. Most of them do not realize what would be a more practical form of existence. The Soviet Government does not seem to understand them either, thus leaving the most important problem unsolved.

The Soviet Government buys tractors and modern farm machinery to help the peasants. It supplies a great mechanical need. But the need that arises from the peasant's heart, the desire to own the land that he tills, that need has not been met. No wonder that the peasant are again restive, and even openly defiant of the despotism of the Communists, who, only a million or less in number, hold in their fists the rest of the Russian nation!—Count Leo Tolstoy in The Outlook.

Germany's Newest Hotel

Is Located at Highest Point in Bavarian Alps

Germany does not produce skyscrapers, but she has achieved somewhat the same effect by putting an hotel more than 9,000 feet in the air, atop of the country's highest mountain, the Zugspitze, in the Bavarian Alps. The new hotel, which has just been opened, is at the terminus of the cable railway running to the summit of the Zugspitze, and lies above the perpetual snow-line. The building is massively constructed to resist the worst storms which howl around the peak and is anchored in solid rock.

Another German construction feat will be the completion of the biggest dam in Europe and one of the biggest in the world, which is now being built in the valley of the Sorpe, a small river in Westphalia. It will be about 225 feet high and some 2,400 feet long. The reservoir thus formed will hold about 19,000,000 gallons and will serve as the water supply for a district containing 4,000,000 people. Two years more will be required to complete the dam, and it will take three additional years before it is filled.

It will prevent ulcerated throat.—At the first symptoms of sore throat, which presages ulceration and inflammation, take a spoonful of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. Add a little sugar to it to make it palatable. It will allay the irritation and prevent the ulceration and swelling that are so painful. Those who were periodically subject to quinsy have thus made themselves immune to attack.

Question Not Yet Settled

Correct Pronunciation of "Peps" Still Subject to Dispute

The pronunciation of the name of the famous English diarist Samuel Pepys has long been subject to dispute. And the question has never been settled. Some years ago A. H. Blake, after an investigation of evidence reported to the Library Association of London in favor of "Peeps," but this was in direct opposition to the practice of Cottenham Pepys, one of whom, when addressed as "Peeps" reported, "my name, sir, is Pepys." A. H. Blake, in the office of Pepys in his La Cle Intervella, published in 1679, rhymes Pepys with lips, clearly suggesting he knew his chief as "Pipes." —O. O. McIntyre.

Canadian Farmer Tells His Experience

Les Booth, widely known Ontario farmer, and a sick man for 20 years, suffered daily, only half alive. Now strong, robust, vigorous, credits new found health to Tanlac.

Though popularly known as "Les," Mr. Booth's correct first name is George. His home is at 271 Perth St., Brockville. For the past three years he has enjoyed vigorous health but what he endured before then is best told in his own words. "For twenty years my arms, shoulders, back and hips ached with rheumatism," said Mr. Booth. "Often I had to quit work entirely and I remember one bad spell that kept me in bed for six months."

"My case got to be so chronic that the help ran the farm. I was practically helpless. Even my wrists and hands would swell up so I couldn't write my name. I dreaded bedtime, for I got no rest, but lay there in agony, waiting for morning. Nervous spells would seize me and I would tremble all over like a leaf. I couldn't get any benefit from my food and had to force myself to eat. My weight was far below normal."

"Three years ago I decided to give Tanlac a good trial for nothing else had helped me. I could scarcely believe such results were possible as those Tanlac soon showed. The aching stopped, my appetite came back and I could eat heartily. My nights became more restful, too, and I slept soundly. I gained 10 pounds which I still retain, and now work hard outdoors from 8 to 10 hours a day. I never have an ache. It's hardly believable! If folks want to know what Tanlac can do, tell them to write to Les Booth, or to come and see me. I'll tell 'em."

If your health is broken from over-work or neglect, profit from Mr. Booth's experience. Try Tanlac, nature's own body builder, made from roots, herbs and barks. Your druggist has it. Over 52 million bottles sold.

"That I wouldn't do," he declared promptly. "If you have any other reason than a sudden desire to enjoy my admirations without interruptions, I don't want to know it. I am jealous of my vanity!"

"Then you shall be flattered," she returned gaily. "I am in the mood for you. Someday there's got to be a battle between us, between you and me, Roddy. Let's have it now."

He was on his feet in an instant and standing over her. She stopped with her eyes, and held him half bent down to her. She did not stir, nor put up a hand; it was just the indescribable something in her eyes.

"No, not just now," she said, her lips shaping into the utmost of their provocativeness. "You mustn't be too literal. But tonight, perhaps—or tomorrow night—or when the moment arrives. But as soon as we can, I want to know how I'm coming off."

"Damn you! Are you playing with me?"

No Roddy, I've never played. Not since my money came. Someday I want to play. After we've had our battle, perhaps. What shall we do first? Let's go through the mist to some place." Why no up La Turbie?" "Tonight?"

"Tonight. That's what I must hurry home to change for. I shall want to look very alluring."

He straightened and looked down at her coolly for a moment. She did not flinch under his gaze, nor did her lips uncurve. He turned away and looked out the window. It was already darkening outside, and the to the isolated resort above La Turbie village, but tripped on up the stairs. Brandon looked after her. Even women who were careless seldom went up La Turbie to dine or dance at the famous restaurant atop the hill, unless in groups. The gayest of the hidden rendezvous along the coast, it was in some respects also the most forbidding. One always went up La Turbie but one did not, customarily, talk about it. After he had stood for a time in deep reflection, Brandon went onto the Antette veranda and peered out into the damp fog. Accustomed as he was to the Riviera he estimated the feel of it to his nostrils and his fingers. He appeared to gain, from his conclusions, some definite satisfaction.

He summoned a servant and inquired if Mademoiselle Couant was still occupied in her boudoir. The maid reported that her mistress was, and would not be down for some little time. "You may tell her," he ordered, "that I shall not be staying to dinner, if she won't mind."

A half hour later, when he had dismissed the Ametie car which had taken him back to Monte-Carlo, Brandon summoned his valet and demanded that a suit of heavy tweeds be laid out for him. When the man had completed his master ordered:

"Go at once to the garage of the Italian in the Boulevard du Midi and ask for Antoine. If he is not at hand, find out where he can be reached immediately. When you have him say that I want him to drive me as soon as he can be ready up the mountain. If he objects to the mist, tell him the thicker the fog the heavier his purse will be, and that much more for his men. Be sure, however, that it is Antoine himself you find. Otherwise return quickly."

On her way to her own boudoir, Joanna stopped at Yvonne's. She too, it seemed, was particularly painstaking at her evening's toilette. Her maids were flushed and nervous under the temper of their mistress. That "If we drive carefully we can make it," he concluded. "I'll take the wheel myself. You won't be afraid to trust yourself with me, shall you?"

"That's what I want to find out, Roddy. So many people are skeptical of me. I want to know if they're right or wrong."

He laughed. "I shan't ask you to stay beyond the hour," he declared. "I'll need some time alone to try and figure you out. What's happened? Something has, I am certain."

She stopped with her eyes, and held him half bent down to her.

"Nothing," she answered him. "Nothing, that is, that wasn't expected."

A servant notified them that Mademoiselle's mount had been brought to the door before either of them realized that the horse had flown. She had induced Kendilworth to tell her some of the histories of the souvenirs which were strewn about the room in which the tea had been served, and she was enthusiastic about them.

When she went out to her horse she found that the groom also had brought a mount. Kendilworth nodded his approval. Joanna begged to be allowed to ride back to Ametie alone, declaring her faith in the lights along the sea boulevard and her horse's instinct, but Kendilworth was firm.

"I should take you along myself," he explained, "but I shall want a look at the car. It's a stiff climb to La Turbie. I always want to be satisfied about my brakes."

"And so have I," she told him. "I'm going up La Turbie with Roddy. He's often wanted me to go up with him, and now I've promised."

"Sorry." She did not wait for the inevitable protest against climbing the narrow, winding road that ventured up the steep La Turbie mountain

She shook her head, in response to her mental conclusions upon the ensemble the mirror reflected.

"You may take off the pearls," she commanded a maid, "and bring me diamonds. A lot of them. And I shall not wear this gown after all. It's too innocuous. I've something in burgundy; bring that." As if to herself she added, in a murmur that neither maid could overhear:

Cancer

After twenty years of painful experience and research, the late Dr. F. W. Forbes Ross, noted cancer specialist, announced, in 1912, that cancer is caused by deficiency of potassium salts in the body and if such deficiency is remedied, Cancer, even in advanced cases, will retrograde. Before his death, this eminent English authority abundantly proved the truth of his assertion and, since then, the voluntarily written testimony of thousands of sufferers who state they have been completely restored has brought justified hope and confidence to countless others on both sides of the Atlantic ocean.

The public is but slowly realizing the unpleasant truth that white scientific refinement deprives all white flour and white sugar of the last trace of potassium, the boiling of our vegetables also destroys the health-preserving organic salts which an all-wise Creator originally placed in them and a civilized world, having eliminated its food values, is today consuming what Dr. Forbes Ross described as "muck minus minerals." Such diet creates more acids than the human liver can neutralize or dispose of and the consequent inevitable potassium starvation results in rheumatism in any of its varied forms, goitre, eczema or any of the maladies caused by potassium deficiency, including ulceration of stomach or other organs which, if not remedied, is liable to degenerate to cancer. In fact, the now practically universal intestinal stasis or constipation of civilization, which no pills, purgatives or laxatives will ever cure, is the certain forerunner of ninety per centum of all humanity's maladies, of which cancer is the most deadly.

Joanna went over to the other woman and, stooping, lightly brushed her cheek with her lips. "Then I shan't be seeing you till tomorrow sometime. It will be early, though, for I shan't be able to sleep with tomorrow night so close." She stopped again at the door as she went out, to say, as if it were an afterthought: "Tonight I'm going up La Turbie with Roddy. It will be great fun on the mountain tonight."

Yvonne turned quickly, but the girl had dropped the curtains behind her.

She waved both of her maid's away, when they bore down upon her with Joanna's departure, and sat quietly in a study. Presently she looked up in the mirror before her. She examined the reflection she saw there with an intent, abstract scrutiny.

From her face her gaze wandered to her throat, around which hung her most magnificent pearls, and then to her gown—she had chosen a thing of pink in orchid hues that had come that day from her Paris couturier's.

When she went out to her horse she found that the groom also had brought a mount. Kendilworth nodded his approval. Joanna begged to be allowed to ride back to Ametie alone, declaring her faith in the lights along the sea boulevard and her horse's instinct, but Kendilworth was firm.

"I should take you along myself," he explained, "but I shall want a look at the car. It's a stiff climb to La Turbie. I always want to be satisfied about my brakes."

THE RUBBER STAMP

If a business man thinks it'd be dull to notches and envelopes with a rubber stamp, he might as well do it. And when there is no printing in his door, he ought to be saluted. Such a man when he comes to do, ought to be saluted. If he has his hands full, he might stamp another label on his blanched lie and pin that in. Come to think of it, a full account of the business event might be put in the hands of an interesting and economical man.—Ed.
